

DEFENDS FREE SUGAR
AS PLEDGE OF PARTY

SENATOR JAMES ACCREDITED
WITH SPEAKING FOR PRESI-DENT IN SENATE
ADDRESS.

EXPECT A VOTE TODAY

Question of Public Hearing Amendment Debated in Senate Will Come Up for Debate
This Afternoon.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., May 16.—Senator James, accredited with speaking for President Wilson and the administration, interpreted the Baltimore platform in a speech in the senate today as committing the president and the democratic party to free sugar.

His remarks were in reply to the declarations by Senator Ransdell and Senator-elect Broussard of Louisiana that it did not.

In the gallery, listening closely, was Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the president, who went to the capitol to hear the reply to the anti-free sugar platform which for two days have been assailing the sugar schedule
which President Wilson has declared
will not be compromised if he can help it.

Senator James declared that the platform adopted at the Baltimore convention approved the course of the democratic house in the last session of congress and that it included approval of the free sugar schedule.

He read a paragraph from the democratic campaign text book approving "the excellent record of the house" in placing sugar on the free list.

Senator Ransdell asked if President Wilson had not declared in a speech
at Pittsburgh that he did not stand for free trade.

Senator James returned that the president was not a free trader and that the proposed bill which is calculated to raise three hundred million dollars in revenue was not a free trade bill.

Wilson No Free Trader.
"If you say President Wilson is a free trader because he favors free
sugar," demanded Senator James,
"did you call yourself a free trader
when you voted for free bread and free shoes?"

Senator Ransdell denied he was a free trader and asked if the democratic national committee had not included its orators in the west not to discuss an industry which the party would not have been defeated if they had discussed it there.

Legitimate Industry.
"I know the Chicago headquarters
of legitimate industry," he declared, "Senator James referred to the point made by the Louisiana leaders that President Wilson and the platform had declared against tariff revision which would injure any legiti-mate industry."

By legitimate industry in the platform," said the Kentucky senator, "is meant industrially legitimate and com-mercially legitimate industry. It does not refer to an industry which has had years of government aid and protection and is yet unable to take care of itself."

Senate Meets Early.
The senate met an hour earlier than usual today so that democrats and republicans might speak before a vote
was taken on the question of public hearings on the tariff bill. Under the agreement the vote was to be taken at 4:00 p. m. Chairman Simmons of the finance committee was confident that hearings would be refused and some republican leaders were inclined to maintain this position.

Senator James under the agreement was to be the first speaker today. He was to answer the charge by Senator Ransdell that Louisiana democrats had no hearing in the Baltimore platform that the speaker of the house had said that they must expect free sugar.
Senators La Follette and Norris also planned to speak.

Senator Kern's resolution for investigation of the cause of the war, peace,
militarism and oppression of workers in the West Virginia mine district was up again today in the senate with prospects of a vote.

Public report on all proceedings of the various committees of the house
was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative Smith of New York. Standing committees would be required to keep an accurate record of all proceedings and to publish in the congressional record.
The resolution was referred to the committee on rules.

Representative Smith said the resolution would be an excuse for pigeonholing of meritorious bills in secret committee sessions.

health. For many weeks past the venerable banker has been confined to his bed and for days his condition
was reported to be extremely critical.
Late there has been some slight improvement in the condition of the patient though the physicians in attendance do not hold out any hope of a complete recovery, owing to Mr.
Morton's advanced age and the nature
of his illness.

TAKEN TO BRODHEAD TO ANSWER CHARGE

J. P. Robinette, Traveling Insurance Man Arrested Here—Charged With Assaulting Woman.

J. P. Robinette, a traveling bond and insurance salesman, was placed under arrest by Patrolman Morrissey about one o'clock this morning at the corner of Wall and Academy streets and held to await the arrival of the City Marshal from Brodhead at whose instance he was found and detained. The marshal telephoned the police station about ten-thirty o'clock last night, giving the description of a man who it was alleged had assaulted a woman and was believed to have escaped from the city on a freight train. Robinette corresponds with the description but was so intoxicated that he was unable to give an account of himself. This morning he admitted coming to Janesville on a freight train from Burlington and said that he left the train at Brodhead to get a drink, entering a house which he was told was a boarding house. He saw no woman and did not remember what he did there. The City Marshal of Brodhead and George Christman, husband of the woman whom it was alleged Robinette attacked arrived at 10:30 o'clock this morning and returned with Robinette a few minutes later. When he was arraigned in court there soon afterwards the complaint was changed from that of simple assault to one of drunkenness to which he pleaded guilty. He was fined with costs $8.00. Robinette is a man of about middle age, well dressed and has several friends in this city who came to see him when they learned that he was in trouble. One accompanied him to Brodhead.

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN BY LAUREAN SOCIETY

Give Entertainment at Opening Exercises at High School This Morning—Score Hit With Play.

A fine display of dramatic talent was exhibited this morning at the high school by the girls of the Laurean Literary Society. The program was on the literary order and it was most creditably presented to the student body. The society has just closed a very successful year and considered it would be a fine thing to give a program before the school to close up their work. Miss Ruth Southman was first on the program with a violin solo, which was of a high order, and a difficult selection to play. She was accompanied by Miss Mae Hayes at the piano. Following her selection, an short two act comedy under the name of "Cousin Frank" was given by five members of the society. This production was very amusing, and was given well. The cast was as follows: Cousin Frank, Margaret Jeffries; Edna Raymond, Sybil Richardson; Genevieve Raymond, Frances Jackson; Mae Raymond, Elizabeth McManus; Miss Thorne, Elizabeth Holmes.

Between act one and two, Jessica George gave a reading on the "Harvard Yale Boat Race." Miss George is a very pleasing speaker and realized fully the dramatic situation in her selection. Following the play, the entire club took the rostrum and sang a song. The program was in all respects a delightful affair and the Laurean are to be complimented for serving such a high class entertainment.

ATHENA CLASS ENTERTAINED BY MRS. THOMAS S. NOLAN

The Athena class held a delightful social meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. S. Nolan on South Third street. The following numbers were given: Piano solo Miss Treat
Selection from Whittier Miss Vocal solo Miss Nolan

Forty Dollar Donation to Be Given Moose Band

Committee in Charge of Entertaining Madison Delegation Remember Services of Musicians.

In recognition of their services last Friday morning in honor of the visiting delegation from Madison, which was here to inspect Janesville as a possible state fair site, the Moose band will be given forty dollars to be added to their fund for uniforms. The committee in charge of the entertainment of Madison committee made this announcement today. The musicians refused to take anything for their services on that occasion or for either of the meetings of the Twenty Five Thousand club and as they are trying to raise funds for uniforms this was deemed a practical way of expressing the appreciation of the citizens.

THE RIGHT ATTITUDE.

Congressman Lenroot was one of the principal speakers at the republican banquet in Madison, Wednesday evening. While Mr. Lenroot is an old-time, La Follette supporter, he broke away from his leadership during the last campaign, and became neutral, refusing to join the Roosevelt forces.

In his address he had many nice things to say for La Follette, but regarded the welfare of the party as more important than the ambitions of any candidate as will be seen by the following extracts:

"The question before us now, before the rank and file of the republican party ever, there is whether they will regain control of their party, or let it die and go over to the progressive or the democratic party.

"I think any man who is a republican, or who has been a republican,
must conclude that the wise thing,
the patriotic thing, to do, is to gain control of the party and make its leadership representative of its rank and file.

"The progressive party professes high aims and noble purposes. It has many patriotic men and women in it,
but no party having for its principal foundation the disappointed ambition
of a candidate for president should be relied upon for national service if a better instrumentality can be found.

"The democratic party has at its head President Wilson, and except upon the tariff, I see little difference between him and a progressive republican. It may be that as time goes on, differences will appear which are not apparent now. It is true, however,
that so long as the democratic party
clings to its doctrine of state's rights to the extent advocated by southern states, it cannot be the instrument for the solution of national questions.

"I believe that a national convention will be called within a year, for the purpose of re-organizing the party.
Wisconsin should take a leading part in that convention. Our very best men should be there. There should be no thought of presidential candidates for 1916 in that convention.

Conflicting ambitions of men should be laid aside and there should be a common purpose among all republicans of every degree to secure such a re-organization of the party machinery as will insure that the will of the membership of the party, whatever it may be, shall be the law of the convention of 1916. If this movement shall be successful, then the republican party will begin a period of service in the national field like unto
that it performed in the days of Lincoln, and like it has been performing in the various states of the Union.

"That this movement will be successful I have no doubt. The republican party is progressive when it represents its membership. Whatever reason may have existed for the existence of the progressive party will disappear when the republican party again represents its membership. For progressives to insist upon a third party organization after the republican party machinery is placed in control of its members, will be to place partisanship above patriotism. To divide our forces when there is no
principle at stake is not good citizenship. I am satisfied that an overwhelming majority of those who voted the third party ticket last Fall will prefer to remain in the republican party, if through that party they can secure the results they desire in way of government. Untied as we will be,
the republican party will grow greater and stronger as the years go by, and it will restore to the people of this great nation that representative government, founded for us by the fathers to abide with us always."

The sentiment expressed is dictated

by the right spirit, and when the republican party is re-organized, it will be along the lines suggested. The day of one man never is. In the past, Colonel Roosevelt, with his strong personality, and popular following, failed.
The party has always been greater than the man and will continue to be.

MERLIN HULL.

One of the men who stands out in prominence during the present session of the Wisconsin state legislature is Merlin Hull, of Black River falls, speaker of the lower house. Mr.
Hull accepted a hard position when elected speaker, but he has thus far carried off the honors, displaying a capability that marks him for future preference. Mr. Hull is not a big man, physically, but mentally he is big and shoulders above his com-
peers who bluster and delay legislation for the purpose of political significance to measures which may be passed. First, last and always Mr.
Hull stands for protection of the state and its interests. Even the fact he has been practically sidetracked by being placed in the speaker's chair
has not prevented him from taking the floor in behalf of him for future
pet measures, particularly those directed towards making the state university an educational institution, not a political combination of scheming
"high brows" who seek to despoil the state treasury of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for the benefit of a political organization. Unfortunately for Mr. Hull he has thus far fought a losing fight, but the taxpayers of the state are waking up to the situation and it would be strange
if within the next two years a radical change in opinion did not sweep over the state that would place men in control of state affairs whose views were similar to Mr. Hull's, and possibly Mr.
Hull himself may be swept into the governor's chair along with the tide.

Strange things have happened and Mr. Hull's fight for a university clean
from all taint of politics is meeting
with approval of citizens generally,
even if political influence is sufficiently strong to defeat the measures in the two houses. At home Mr. Hull is editor of a newspaper, and one of his recent articles published here says,
according to the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

"The speaker relates the hostility
of President Van Hise to the bill which would open the meetings of the university board of regents to the public and to the appointment of a board of visitors with power to investigate university affairs, such board to contain members appointed respectively by the president of the senate and the speaker of the assembly. The regents took action indicating that there were to be an investigating committee the university wants the privilege of selecting nearly all of the investigators, whereas Speaker Hull
remarks:

"In the 'World's Work' for April
there is a long article, written by a man said to be a lecturer in the university, the subject of which is, 'How a University Runs a State,' and which relates how the university dominates affairs in Wisconsin. It is a pretty raw piece of prose, but from the attention of the university bunch in attempting to sidetrack all inquiry regarding its affairs, it is evident that they do not intend to let the people have any exact knowledge of 'how a university runs a state.'

"The speaker is entitled to credit for the persistency of his labors as well as for the courage of his convictions.

"This statement of Mr. Hull brings forth the following article from former Governor Hoard himself an ex-member of the state board of university regents, who knows what he talks about.

"Before a great while we hope the taxpayers of Wisconsin will wake up to the truth of the situation as it relates to the dangerous character of the present administration of the university, both as to its own future as well as that of the state at large. Plenty of warning has been given the people
concerning this danger and the success which has attended the efforts of Van Hise, Trotman and the university gang in general to stifle all investigation and keep up the La Follette
game of domination over the affairs of the state ought to open the eyes of every voter. It is one of the accursed results of progressive politics, and sober, reflecting men ought to see it."

Good, consistent boosting will accomplish great things. This has been demonstrated by the work, done by the committee named to boost Janesville as a state fair site. Every member in Janesville is talking of Janesville and every member knows that Janesville is in the race and what it has to offer. Further than that, the members of the legislative committee that visited here a week ago are still wearing the little red booster buttons
of the Janesville Twenty-five Thousand club, which is a good sign that Janesville made a favorable impression.

Possibly the architect of the proposed New York court house designed
it in circular form on the assumption to erect a public building or dispense justice on the square in that city.

"There is no more patient, courteous, long-suffering individual than the New York policeman proper," says a New York newspaper. But how many of them are proper?

Huerfano says he will smash the rebels in a month. Perhaps he has obtained a promise from them to stay
in one place long enough for that purpose.

The New York woman who has petitioned the court for alimony of $78,000 a year must have a rather definite idea of what the traffic will bear.

Austria is now in a position to confer upon its soldiers who started to clean up the Montenegrins the insigni-
a of the order of the double cross.

Recent developments indicate that some of New York's police inspectors will not live hereafter in the style to which they have become accustomed.

Miss Wilson may lose her $2,000 job
as secretary to the commissioner of labor without disturbing her tenure as daughter of the secretary of labor.

Why should President Wilson lament
that his job is a lonesome one
with all those office-seekers hanging about eager to converse with him?

St. Louis welcomes the Federal league. Now it will be able to lose three games every day.

MAY PROVE JUNE'S RIVAL
FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

May promises to rival June as the month for brides this year if the marriage license record can be taken as a criterion. Thus far twenty licenses have been issued at the county clerk's office which is an average of more than one a day.

Spasmodic saving followed

by extravagant spending will

Saving money is practically indispensable for busi-

Read the Story of

"THE POWER OF THE CROSS"

Then see the photoplay, with Mr.

Arthur Johnson, at the Lyric TOMOR-

"Never part with this cross; it was your father's."

These were the last words of Paul Damer's mother as she placed the cross about his neck. A few months later the young clergyman accepts an offer to take a parish at Glenwood, with an invitation to make his home with John Temple, a wealthy churchman. There he meets Iris, daughter of Temple, and Mary Gray, her cousin. Mary immediately

falls in love with Paul, but the latter soon becomes infatuated with Iris, though she is very indifferent toward the young clergyman until she learns from the dashing widow,

Mrs. Brunton, of Mary's love for him. Iris then determines, as a matter of conquest, to win the minister. When

Paul declares his love for Iris, Temple readily gives his consent. Through the persistent pleas of the lively widow,

Iris is led to accept her invitations as of old, and it was due to her failure to return home at the proper hour on one occasion which prompted her father to go in search of her. Instead of Iris being at Mrs. Brunton's home, he found her at a fashionable cafe, inebriated. Taking her home, they are met by the clergyman-husband, who now

learns for the first time of his wife's weakness, but promptly forgives her upon her promise to break from Mrs. Brunton and her set. Later, when Paul decides to visit Dr.

Banks at his old home, Iris takes advantage of his absence

by giving a card party to Mrs. Brunton and her friends.

Wine flows freely. Paul returns unexpectedly and discovers them. A violent quarrel ensues, resulting in Iris leaving and going to Mrs. Brunton's. All efforts to bring her back are futile. Iris goes from bad to worse. A rejected suit, Clifford Moore, is a steady visitor at the Brunton home. Paul grows desperate at his wife's absence and, in a fit of despondency, tears away his holy vestments, but when he attempts to destroy the cross, Mary prevents.

Completely crazed, Paul grabs a bottle from the sideboard

and drains it. Unnerved by what he has witnessed, the father, John Temple, falls dead. Later Paul meets Clifford

in a gambling house and, accusing him for his wife's desertion, attacks him, declaring that he "will kill him." The men are separated and Paul put out. Clifford leaves the resort, a heavy winner that night, and is followed by Card-

well, a gambler and crook, who waylays and murders him.

When the crime is discovered Paul is readily suspected, arrested and tried. Many witnesses testify to hearing Paul's threat at the gambling house. All hope vanishes until Mary Gray, regardless of public opinion, swears to

Paul's presence in her own home the night of the crime.

Her story is proved and Paul is finally freed, just as word comes that Iris is dying in an old tenement basement, where she has taken refuge. Mary and Paul arrive at the bedside just as Iris is breathing her last.

A few months pass. Mary is now a nurse in a hospital.

Paul, repenting for the life he has been leading, calls upon

Mary, who returns to him the cross upon hearing him declare that he is going to preach in foreign lands and wants her to accompany him as his wife. Convinced of his sincerity, Mary capitulates, and with Paul in full vestment

once more they journey onward, placing their trust in "The Power of the Cross."

VALUABLE PEARL WAS FOUND IN CLAM SHELL

Worker at New Railroad Bridge Makes Discovery in Clam Brought up by Big Pump

William Schook, employed by the Cleary-White Construction Company in building the railroad bridge over Rock river, is about fifty dollars richer as a result of opening a clam shell yesterday afternoon that the suction pump that is used to bring dirt up from the bottom of the river for puddle damming the coffer dams brought up. The pump is so powerful that it sucks up clams and stones from the bottom of the river. Schook happened to be lucky enough to open a clam containing a pearl the value of which is estimated at fifty dollars.

The dirt that is brought up from the bottom of the river is used to fill in the space between the original coffer dam and the sheeting placed around the inclosure, making the interior waterproof. Hundreds of clams are being brought up by the pump and deposited in the mud. On seeing an extra large clam in the mud, the young man picked it up and opened it with a penknife. A valuable pearl rolled out into his hand. It is perfectly round, of a pure white color and the size of a small pea. Mr. Schook, who has found other pearls in similar manner, values the value of it at about fifty dollars.

This morning several of the former believing that the early bird catches the worm, were down to the bridge long before working time, fishing in the mud of the dam for clams. Schook, but only found a few valueless slugs. Not only have clams been brought up by the pump, but also fish have been drawn up the pipes, only to be smothered beneath the dirt.

FINDING OF CLOTHING CAUSES SUICIDE RUMOR

Marquette, May 16.—The finding of a coat and hat in the Soo line lot of Manitowoc with letters addressed to Byron Connerthon who resides on Terrace avenue, Marquette, in the coat caused considerable suspicion yesterday that Connerthon had committed suicide. Chief of Police Connerthon, who read of the finding of the coat, today telephoned the authorities at Manitowoc to ascertain the truth. It is learned that Connerthon had left his coat and hat in this depot and, having the Ann Arbor car ferry for a moment's chat with a friend and before he was able to leave the boat had pulled out of port. He was unable to communicate with Manitowoc until the boat was docked at Frankfort.

Fellow Feeling.
Willie had often visited his father's office in town and had grown quite fond of Miss Drew, his father's secretary. One morning when his father was starting for town he heard Willie's voice shouting: "Father, wait a minute!" Daddy waited until Willie caught up. "Well, son, what is it?" he asked. "I want to give you a kiss for Miss Drew," replied Willie.

SPORT SHOTS

by Dad McCarty

Long-Geared Tommy Murphy is the young Pop Geers of the Grand Circuit. He has been driving marvelously for ten years and in that time has gotten nearly as many winners and losers as any other retnsmen. Some of the star horses he has driven are L. carida, Trampiest, Queen, Worthing, Brace Girle, (owner of the world's record for a five heat race by a trotter), R. T. C., Lady Jones, Princess Virginia, Princess Told, Guy Axworthy, Dave Hallie, George Gano, Director Jay.

When he made his debut as a professional, Johnny Coulton, Danam champion, used to wear a smile. He doesn't any more, Johnny says boxing is as serious a game as Wall street if not more.

Donerail, no choice at all for the leading money, won the Kentucky derby at Churchill Downs, Saturday and established a new record at the 1 1/2 mile track. The 30th renewal of the derby was one of the best horse races of years.

Vionk, who played short for Pittsburg until Hans Wagner got fixed up, was recommended to Dreyfus as a pitcher, but for the first three weeks of the season he is leading the National league with an average of .395.

One fight in Pittsburg and battling Nelson says he is through with the ring forever. It's about time. Bat has built up a wonderful enough record for surviving punishment. He has taken on hooks, jabs, uppercuts, and all crosses for seventeen years and still he has never been stretched on the mat for a ten-second count. Sammy Robideau of Philadelphia is the latest luminary eastern ristic circles are discussing. Robideau fought Johnny Lore in New York last week and defeated him, showing great science.

Frank Chance, former Cub leader, is so disgusted with his Yankees that he would trade the whole club for one Yearn Grogg or one This Speaker.

For the ten years he has been casting the Reach for the Athletics. Chief Bender jugs a pitching percentage of .32. He has won 135 games and lost 90. Nineteen hundred was Bender's greatest year, he winning 23 games and losing five. He pitched a no-hit contest that season against Cleveland.

The most popular pitching pastimers in the country are Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson and Ed. Walsh. Popular with the players as well as the public.

Terrible Terry McGovern is about to "come back." But don't get excited or sympathetic. Its to the stage that Terry's ambition wanders, not to the ring. Terry started his career in his old character of the Bowery boothblack in the show written for him during his championship days, "The Bowery After Dark."

The Giants blame their miserable start to home runs that lost games for them when they had them won. Fielding is one thing and pitching another, but what is a club to do but win and bear it when the other fellows chime in with circuit clouts.

BASEBALL TEAM IS UNABLE TO SECURE GAME THIS WEEK

Coach Curtis, of the High school baseball nine, found it utterly impossible to arrange a game for tomorrow. He has tried with eight various High schools, and also with St. John's Military Academy, of Delafield, Wis., but without success. Captain Harry Ryan thinks it just as well that the team does not play this week, because no practice has been engaged in, due to the bad weather, thus making the team not in the best of shape for a game. It is hoped that next week a game will be arranged. A letter from Watertown was received this morning, in answer to a letter written by Coach Curtis some days ago. Perhaps

GETTING A DROP TOO MUCH—IN THE STONE AGE AND TODAY.

Happiness in Work.
To augment human happiness, a writer in the Edinburgh Review remarks, must be the purpose, main or incidental, of every person. Absolutely incidental with most, it must be believed. The activities connected with the business of living in a world with other men and women absorb us. Happiness is a by-product of these activities of the common life.

Carelessness.
Old Lady (who has been lunching with her son)—"Here, William, you left this quarter on the table by mistake. It's lucky I saw it, because the waiter had his eye on it."—Life.

His Side Line.
"That poet who wrote an ode to a bunch of daffodils and won the $10,000 prize offered by that eastern magazine—is that all he does for a living?" "By no means. He is also an authority on onion culture and is a staff contributor for three agricultural journals."

Naming the Baby.
"Have you decided on a name for the baby yet?" "Not as yet. My family has named one member of a commission and my wife's family has named another. These two are to agree on a third, and the three of them are to decide on a name."

Might Have Been Worse.
"What are you swearing about?" inquired the farmer. "Oh, growled the motorist, "this machine got broke down, and I can't get it to go." "You're in luck," said the farmer, "the last man I saw round here got all broke because he couldn't get his to stop."

Science in Popular Speech.
"Language was given for the concealment of thought," said the ready-made philosopher. "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "Many an impropriety is hidden by a scientific word of four or five syllables."

TELLS OF DESTRUCTION OF NEBRASKA TORNADO

H. J. Cadman, a local employee of the St. Paul railroad, arrived last night on an extended western trip and on his way to this city passed through the vicinity in Nebraska that was struck by Wednesday night's storm. He says that the wind that all trains on the St. Paul, North-western and Rock Island lines were ordered to be sidetracked until the storm had receded. Even then the cars rocked and most of the passengers sought a more safe place, fearing that the train would be blown over. The storm struck South Omaha the hardest, doing considerable damage there.

Heavy rains accompanied the windstorm and two Northwestern locomotives were wrecked, a short distance out of Omaha. Miles of track on both the St. Paul and Northwestern lines were washed out and when the trains received orders to continue their run after being held up for twelve hours, they only proceeded at a rate of ten miles per hour, fearing the condition of the tracks. Because of the slowness of the train it was forty-eight hours before Mr. Cadman reached this city.

D. S. Bush, vice-president of the Milwaukee and Puget Sound railroad, said that the storm was a fearful one. He said that the St. Paul and Northwestern lines in this city yesterday afternoon enroute from Minneapolis to Chicago. Beginning this week train number 191 will run Monday and Wednesdays only and will make the forty-eight hour trip on Wednesdays and Fridays instead of Tuesdays and Fridays.

Heavily Dutch Salutation.
The Dutch are exceedingly sparing of words, but their God-bless you! after someone has sneezed is both quick and hearty. That sneezing is an evil, the bad effects of which can be averted by prayer, is an almost world-wide superstition, but as colonizers the Dutch had particular opportunity to test its universality. Sneezing is taken more seriously in Holland than anywhere else.

WINNING BROTHERS.

From Appleton Crescent.—As he was about to leave town two years ago John D. Winninger stated to the writer that it was his desire to surround himself with a company and obtain a class of plays that would elevate popular price repertoire. The presentation of "The Man of the Hour" is a criticism of the above statement demonstrated that he has realized his ambition. His decision came after his brother Frank had left the brothers with his own show and Charles had gone back to Blanchard, Ring. The attractions John's company are offering are superior to any bills the Winningers had when the brothers were together. They are of a higher order, being attractions on which royalty is paid, but to present them requires talent and Mr. Winninger has succeeded in surrounding himself with that.

There is no intention of saying that "The Man of the Hour" was presented the same as it was by the original company. A criticism of that nature would carry no weight for while in the original company the cast could be selected for each particular part, those in its last night must be able to take a different part in ten shows. The same effect is of necessity less elaborate, but notwithstanding that the play was presented in a most commendable manner and showed the kind of company Mr. Winninger has succeeded in getting together. In Appleton the play was presented in a most commendable manner and showed the kind of company Mr. Winninger has succeeded in getting together. In Appleton the play was presented in a most commendable manner and showed the kind of company Mr. Winninger has succeeded in getting together.

NE important question

about painting is: How many square feet will a gallon of paint cover? It depends on the condition of the building, and on the paint.

The common claim for paint is, 300 square feet to the gallon, two coats. As a rule with paints, this is not true.

Devoe Lead-and-Zinc Paint covers 300 to 500 square feet, so painters say. We think 300 not enough, and 500 too much, to claim for it; but both have been true.

Devoe is a safe name to go by in buying paint. It's all paint, and it'll go.

Underwood. Old Oscar can tell you as quick as a wink. The state of the tariff from agate to zinc. He knows every crook and he knows every luvv. There's nothing remaining for Oscar to learn.

He reels off statistics, yes, yard after yard. Concerning rope, sugar, cigars, soap and lard. Cheese, axle grease, breakfast food, hair oil and pills. Tacks, calico, amica capsules and squills.

We've tried hard to follow old Oscar's wild flights in tariff revision. We've studied in, in a night. But we must confess thought it grieves us most sore. We know less about it than we did before.

The Underwood bill is as clear to us now. As a bucket of mud, we are pained to allow. If he can explain it as he says he can. Old Oscar is quite a remarkable man.

There ain't nothing that sticks out on a teller like bad grammar. If a teller is a low-brow he is sure to show it sometime. He can't conceal it any more than he kin conceal a wart on his nose.

It ain't what a teller makes in his work, but what he saves that counts, unless, of course, it is cigar coupons, or chevin' tobacco tags.

DENVER WILL ELECT CITY COMMISSIONERS

One Hundred and Fifty Candidates for Six Offices to be Filled—Campaign Near Close.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Denver, Colo., May 16.—Denver's first election under a new charter will be held next Tuesday and the event is looked forward to with eager interest by citizens who believe that the commission plan of government will destroy many of the political evils that have long flourished in the Colorado capital. For the six offices to be filled at the election there are more than 150 candidates.

The campaign now drawing to a close is in many respects the most unique in the history of Denver. Under the new charter no candidate is allowed to receive any assistance from any party, organization, from any corporation or from any united organization of any kind. Neither is a candidate allowed to spend any money other than for the distribution of his own literature and the hiring of halls in which to make speeches. All candidates are nominated by petition.

The election will be conducted under the preferential system of voting. Each voter will register his first choice for each office, then his second choice and on the third choice he may vote for every other candidate if he so desires. The votes are counted for choice first, and if no-one has a majority of all votes counted, then the second choices are added and if there is no one with a majority then the third choices are added and the persons having the largest vote are declared elected.

Do the Wicked Continue Sinning After Death?

By REV. J. H. RALSTON,
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"He that is unrighteous, let him do unrighteousness still; and he that is filthy, let him be made filthy still; and he that is righteous, let him do righteousness still; and he that is holy, let him be made holy still." Rev. 22:11, A. R. V.

Do the wicked cease sinning when they die? Probably the vast majority of those who ever consider this question without deep thought say they certainly do, for men are to render account to God for the deeds done in the flesh, and when a man dies his account is closed. Is it not wise to matter a little carefully?

Our thoughts are presented from the evangelical standpoint as to the nature, manifestation, and outcome of sin. The widely prevalent, modern, though erroneous, view of sin makes it rather an advantage than a disadvantage, Adam's fall being upward rather than downward.

One of the first suggestions is that sin is self-perpetuating. It is a common saying that one sin leads to another—that sin follows sin somewhat automatically. Sin, however, is not to be considered as consisting chiefly in outward transaction, but in the motive that is behind it. When a man dies his personality with its stamped character continues, and reason would say that his course of action with respect to the moral law is to continue. Professor Denney says: "The very conception of human freedom involves the possibility of its permanent misuse, or what our Lord himself calls 'eternal sin.'"

The punishment of sin is not today held up before the transgressor, but rather the sin itself. Is not the sin really the great evil? It may be said that if a man can cease from sin outwardly in this life, sin may not become permanent. But this ceasing from sin is by almighty power alone, and this power is denied after death. If it is further said that man by the mere force of his own will can cease from sin, we reply that the ceasing is only in the outward manifestation, and not in the real sinning, which belongs to the motive.

Meager light is thrown on the activity of the wicked after death, but we know the scripture teaches that men who die in sin go to dwell with the devil and his angels. What is the employment of the devil? Does any one who believes in a personal devil believe that he does not continue to sin? Is he not intensely active, the instigator of all the cruelty, oppression, wars, abominations, lies and wickedness in the universe? If so, what about those whom scripture calls his children? Jesus said they do the deeds of their father, and are they any less children after death than before?

There is no evidence that after death there is a cessation from sin if we consider the employment or experiences of the inhabitants of the other world. As to heaven, about which we know much more than about hell, we learn the employment of the righteous. There is no intimation of sinning, there is consequently no gospel preaching, mission work, social regeneration, or anything of that kind, but the inhabitants of heaven are engaged in the praise of God, in worshipping him in his glorious majesty, and doing his behests whatever they may be. In the text we read that he that is righteous is to do righteousness still, and he that is holy, is to be made more holy. Some one might say, "If the conditions in this life have a tendency to perpetuate themselves, will not Christians who show imperfection by sinning, continue to show their imperfection in heaven in the same way?" We might admit that if we did not have the direct teaching of scripture that there is no sin in heaven, nothing that defiles, that works abomination or makes a lie. From analogy we would conclude from the employment of the inhabitants of heaven, the employment of the wicked will be unrighteous or sinful.

The teaching of scripture, though not abundant, seems to be clear. Jesus said (Mark 3:29, A. R. V.) that if a man sin against the Holy Ghost he shall be guilty of an eternal sin. This certainly teaches that there is at least one eternal sin, a sin that continues in action forever. Revelation 22:11 seems to leave the matter beyond dispute, and it is well to observe that this teaching comes at the very close of the Bible. "He that is unrighteous let him do unrighteousness still, and he that is filthy, let him be made filthy still." The marginal reading suggests the phrase "yet more" for the word "still" in each case. Here, certainly, the employment of the wicked is clearly presented.

What a sad fate, doomed to eternal sinning! The only escape is to have the motive to sin removed by the indwelling life of Christ. Then the habit of doing righteousness will establish the character that does righteousness, and the future is safe.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

DRESS FORMS.

(By Howard L. Rana.)

THE dress form is an inanimate object which makes it easy for a woman to tell whether a new gown is going to fit in more than one place or not without jabbing a living model full of pin holes.

Before the dress form was discovered a woman never knew whether her dress gaped in the back or sagged in the front until she got to a meeting of the Priscilla sewing circle, when she was informed of it immediately after the reading of the minutes. Women who preferred to make their own clothes rather than wait until Thanksgiving day for a spring suit had to borrow one of the neighbors for a half day, and then circle around her with pins and a critical squint. If she happened to select a hipless neighbor or one who would lose interest in the proceedings and drop wearily to the port side the finished product would fit like a rain coat on a Rocky Mountain antelope.

There are two kinds of dress forms—wire and pneumatic. The wire form has no arms or legs, but is sound in all other respects. One nice thing about the wire dress form is that it is not liable to shift to the other foot and throw out both arms in an elastic yawn just as the fitter has staked out some buttonholes. It does not complain, either if it is stabbed in the back with a safety pin, and it never sits down on the sofa in a fetching negligee and expresses an unbiased opinion on the quality of the material used or the suaness of the skirt.

The pneumatic dress form is a beneficial device which can be blown up to correspond with any waist measure and left in a disoriented condition while the owner decides where she will tack on a few pleats. It is dangerous, however, to use mine around a pneumatic form, as it is liable to explode on being punctured and scatter hooks and eyes all over the premises.

Dress forms are not employed by dressmakers who prefer to use the customer for a target. As a perfect fitting requires the customer to stand in an erect and immovable attitude for three hours, without a sag, it is no wonder that the dress form is supplanting this form of cataleptic treatment.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

Full soon the sweet girl graduates in white attire will rise, and tell, in forty-seven states, where Italy now lies. The beautiful maidens of the land, the bold, aspiring youths, on platforms flower-bedecked will stand and hand us vital truths. Life seems to them an easy thing. A banner's all they need; a motto in the air to fling, so he who runs may read. A watchword couched in ancient Greek will smooth the road to fame; ah me, when roses tint the cheek, life seems an easy game! But mark these women old and young, who at commencement time gaze on the festival and mourn—their presence seems a crime. They found this life a harder road than e'er they dreamed it was, with more of whip and spur and goad than of the world's applause. There is a shadow on each brow, still is their buoyant song; their eyes are weak and faded now, for they have wept so long. They're bent from bearing heavy weights, from toiling day and night; they once were sweet girl graduates, serene in snowy white. "Beyond the Alps," we heard them say, high purpose in their eyes, upon a bygone happy day, "the land Italian lies!" Life leads through tangled wilderness, and not through bosky dells, but who'd disown or distress the Blessed Damozels?

His Story.

POPULAR MEMBER OF BRITISH SOCIETY RETURNS TO LONDON FOR THE SEASON

Mrs. "Monty" Elliot.

Mrs. "Monty" Elliot has just returned to London for the season. She was known in society before her marriage as the popular Nellie Post, the daughter of Lady Barrymore by her first husband. She was one of the three American girl chums of Princess Patricia of Connaught. Mrs. Elliot is one of the best cotillion dancers in London society.

Daily Thought.

I think it takes a great deal from a woman's modesty going into public life; and modesty is her greatest charm.—Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

Men—and Vaudeville.

All men may be divided into two classes—those who like vaudeville and those who can stand it when they are drunk.—Smart, Set Magazine.

City Mothers.

A clever club woman once asserted that a good motto for a city hall would be: "What is a city without city mothers?" adding that the time would soon come when it will no longer be asked only of the woman, "Is she good?" and of the man, "Is he a good citizen?" but it will be asked of the woman, "Is she a good citizen?" and of the man, "Is he a good man?"

Candid Soul.

That soul which knows no self seeking, no interested ends, is thoroughly candid. It goes straight forward with no hindrance. Its path opens daily more and more to perfect day.—Fenelon.

Martyr's Rewards.

In Algiers there is a beautiful mosque used entirely by women. And in Algiers, too, if a woman dies in childbirth she has ascribed to her all the rich spiritual rewards accorded to martyrs who died in warfare for their religion, and the graves of such women are marked in a special way.

Worth Extra Time.

"Prisoner at the bar," said the judge, "Is there anything you wish to say before sentence is passed upon you?" "No, my lord; there is nothin' I care to say; but if you'll clear away the tables and chairs for me to thrash my lawyer, you can give me a year or two extra."

Foods That Bind Little Children

Start Them Off Right With a Good Laxative and Then Watch Their Diet.

MARJORIE DARLING.

Mothers are often unconsciously very careless about the diet of their children, forcing all to eat the same foods. The fact is that all foods do not agree alike with different persons. Hence, avoid what seems to constipate the child or to give it indigestion, and urge it to take more of what is quickly digested.

If the child shows a tendency to constipation it should immediately be given a mild laxative to help the bowels. By this is not meant a physic or purgative, for these should never be given to children, nor anything like salts, pills, etc. What the child requires is simply a small dose of the gentlest of medicines, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which in the opinion of thousands of watchful mothers is the ideal remedy for any child showing a tendency to constipation. So many things can happen to a constipated child that care is necessary. Colds, piles, headaches, sleeplessness, and many other annoyances that children should not have can usually be traced to constipation.

Many of America's foremost families are never without Syrup Pepsin, because one can never tell when some member of the family may need it, and all can use it. Thousands endorse it among them Mrs. M. E. Darling, R. F. D. No. 4, Bellevue, Pa., who writes: "I certainly think Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin saved my baby's life. Marjorie is a bottle baby and could not get her food to digest, but I found by giving her a small dose of Syrup Pepsin when she had colic it always cured her." Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being bought by those who already know its value, and it contains proportionately more. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. Everyone likes Syrup Pepsin as it is very pleasant to the taste. It is also mild and non-gripping and free from injurious ingredients.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

You know as well as we do that this store has always been noted for its great value-giving. No one denies this. Everyone admits it. And in this great new store of ours we still continue this policy. And it is because of our value giving advantages that we can offer suits at $15 and $20 that bear higher price marks elsewhere. Guaranteed all-wool fabrics—every size—models that are absolutely correct or we wouldn't show them—patterns that the present season approves. At $15 and $20

LITTLE GIRLS HURT WHEN ELECTRIC CAR STRIKES CARRIAGE

Margaret Brazzel and Edna Connors
Cut and Bruised in Accident
on South Main Street.

Pony Shies.
Bad cuts and bruises and a severe shaking up were suffered late yesterday afternoon by little Edna Connors, aged six, and Margaret Brazzel, aged nine, when they, with their mothers, Mrs. E. E. Connors and Mrs. Henry Brazzel, were struck by an electric car on South Main street between South Second and South Third streets, as the result of the pony shying and turning the vehicle directly in front of the car.

The other occupants of the car escaped with a shaking up and lesser bruises. Mrs. E. E. Connors was dragged for the length of the car.

Miss Brazzel, who was rendered unconscious by the shock, and Miss Connors were carried into the home of Mrs. E. J. Boomer, 224 South Main street, where they were treated. Mr. Palmer was summoned to attend them. He was unable to come at once and sent Dr. F. W. Van Kirk, coming himself a few minutes later. Miss Connors was found to be the worst injured of the two, having received a bad cut in the scalp just above the forehead, and others in the face and knee. The Brazzel girl was taken to the office of Dr. Palmer for a further examination. She regained consciousness soon after being brought into the house.

Statements differ as to the speed of the street car, and as to the responsibility of James Orman for the accident. Mr. Orman claims that he was not running faster than six miles an hour, and stopped it in its own length. Others state that the motorman could see for nearly a block ahead that the pony was shy, but never slowed down.

It was trying to get out of the way of an interurban car. The pony, it is said, made no trouble until it was frightened by the noise of the work car. Mr. Connors purchased it from Stern but a short time ago, and Mrs. Connors was driving it for the first time.

Both little girls were reported this afternoon to be very much improved. There are no indications of serious injuries and serious consequences are not anticipated.

CONDITION OF CROPS IN COUNTY IS GOOD

Strong Stands of Small Grain are Reported.—Clover Seedlings Showing Up Well.—Little Winter Killing.

Crop conditions throughout Rock county are generally good according to the reports of the farmers. The close touch with the farmers and gardeners. Although small grain was sowed a little late it germinated well, has produced strong and even stands, and is thriving at the present time. The acreage of wheat is reported to be larger than last year, the amount devoted to barley being about equal to that in oats. Last year more barley was planted.

It is estimated that the clover, timothy and alfalfa put in with the grain has come up thick, and the fall seedlings generally came through the winter and early spring in fine shape. Some alfalfa was winter killed, but very little clover suffered. The abundance of snow and absence of alternate thawing and freezing were favorable conditions.

The winter grain is grown in this vicinity, rye predominating over winter wheat. They were not damaged by severe climatic conditions except that the dry weather in April prevented them from stooling out as well as was expected. This will reduce the possible yield.

Corn culture is in several stages. A very few have begun sowing, but most of the farmers were preparing the soil for planting when the recent rains began. The season thus far has not been favorable to corn planting, although seed with strong germinating power will not suffer. Demand for seed corn is lively and seed of good quality is much easier to obtain than a year ago. Southern white corn is popular for the growing of silage. Evergreen sweet corn is favored for the same purpose by farmers convenient to the cannery factory as the ears are marketable at a good profit.

Field peas are popular with many, as a soiling crop, and also for hay and pasture. Cow peas and soybeans have never obtained much of a foothold in Rock county. They are southern legumes and the northern season is too short for them to mature.

Pastures and hay fields were kept back by the dry weather last month but they have responded remarkably well to the recent rains. A heavy crop of hay now seems assured.

Demand for garden seeds, tomato, cauliflower, cabbage and pepper plants has been good. Most of the gardens have been planted by this time.

CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Gitchell Kirk

There has been a great change in our regular bill of fare of today, and that of fifty years ago. It is perhaps more noticeable in the increased supply of green and succulent vegetables, which, as their name suggests, are vegetables more for refreshing, palatable and clearing qualities rather than for their nutritive food value. It is very easy for many readers to remember when their own or grandfather's cellar had for their winter supply of vegetables only the staples, such as potatoes, turnips, carrots, beets, cabbage and onions. What a change

Dumplings

For Soups, Stews and Fricassee Chicken. Left overs of roast, lamb, veal or beef, the cheaper cuts of fresh meats, and fowls too old for roasting, make delicious and nourishing stews. K. C. Dumplings make them doubly attractive and the whole dish is most economical—an object to most families while meats are so high and must be made to go as far as possible.

K. C. Dumplings.

By Mrs. Nevada Briggs, the well known baking expert.
2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoons K. C. Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup shortening; milk or cream.
Sift together three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough less stiff than for biscuits.

Allow the steam to boil down so that the liquid does not cover the meat or chicken. Add half a cup of cold water to stop its boiling and drop the dough in large spoonfuls on top of the meat or chicken. Cover and let boil again for 15 minutes.

Made with K. C. Baking Powder and steamed in this way, dumplings are as light as biscuits and are delicious with thickened gravy.

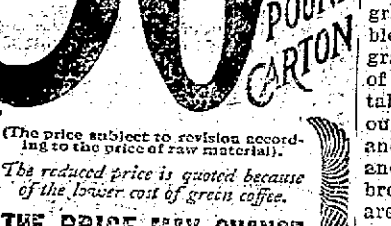

This recipe is adapted from one for Chicken Pot Pie in "The Cook's Book" by Janet McKenzie Hill, editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine. The book contains 90 excellent recipes for things that are good to eat and that help reduce the cost of living. "The Cook's Book" sent free for the colored certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K. C. Baking Powder. Send to Jacques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

has come about in the last few years even with new and improved varieties in these same vegetables; better cultivation, improvements in transportation and storage, the great development of hot-house gardening and the great canning industries have made succulent vegetables common throughout the year.

Food scientists, experiment stations at Washington, domestic science schools with trained teachers all are teaching us the right value of foods as related to our bodies for health, strength and beauty, and now when spring comes, if we have knowledge of foods and mix with our heavy winter diet these green vegetables—we are as well then, (in fact, we should be better) than at any other season of the year.

We can easily group the succulent vegetables according to our general uses. First—Those used for salads uncooked, with or without dressing, such as lettuce of several kinds, cucumbers, endive, water cross, celery, radishes and cabbage.

Second—Vegetables used for flavoring, such as grated carrots, turnips, beets, celery and celery leaves, bay leaves, onion, summer savory, garlic, chives, dill and parsley.

Third—Some of these succulent vegetables may also be cooked such as cabbage, carrots, asparagus, etc., but most of them lose much of their food value and taste, if we have knowledge in mind, most general use, the leaves of dandelion, though of recent introduction is coming to be an important food plant in the United States.

All green vegetables owe their color to chlorophyll, which is the green coloring of plants and plays a very important part in their growth. Plants which are green are robbed of this coloring matter which builds up the life of the plant. The same is true of the color beets, carrots or red leaves of the cabbage, but from a different compound than chlorophyll.

This coloring matter which often squeezed from leaves and flowers and used to color various articles of food. This is perfectly safe coloring matter. Spinach or spinach very fine and then add three or four drops of alcohol or lemon juice to cut and there will be a beautiful green for coloring mayonnaise. The same is true of other plants in coloring matter. Be aware of buying artificially colored foods.

For years men have thought that these vegetables used in salads were for women only something that was faintly and not something that was food. It was very difficult to persuade the average man to have a salad. All this is changing rapidly. It is just as essential for men to eat the green succulent foods as women.

Fardening of the arteries and liver is very common among men, and brought about largely through eating vegetables with none of the natural salts mineral matter which has a clearing quality in these greens.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Sadder than owl-songs or the midnight blast,
Is that portentous phrase, "I told you so."

MUTTON DISHES WITH SAUCES.

Bellied mutton with parsley sauce is a great favorite with mutton lovers. Cook until tender, and serve with the following sauce: Melt two table-spoonfuls of butter or mutton fat, add two table-spoonfuls of flour and cook for six minutes, stirring constantly. Then add a cup of milk or the mutton broth, and cook until the liquid is thickened. Season with salt, and just before serving add the juice of half a lemon and a table-spoonful of chopped parsley.

Horse Radish Sauce.—This is nice to serve with cold bellied mutton. Cook together two table-spoonfuls each of cracker crumbs, better or mutton fat; add a fourth of a cup of fresh-grated horse radish, a half table-spoonful of salt and a cup of milk. Cook for twenty minutes before the horse-radish is added. Serve hot or cold.

Roast Leg of Mutton.—Sprinkle the meat with salt and pepper and place upon the roasting rack, dredge with flour and bake in a hot oven, basting frequently; allow ten to fifteen minutes to the pound, depending upon the taste of those served, as some like mutton underdone. In making the gravy for roast mutton, allow two table-spoonfuls of fat for each cup of gravy desired, pouring off any excess of this amount. To the fat add three table-spoonfuls of flour and cook thoroughly to brown; add boiling water and stir constantly, season with salt and pepper. If the flour is not browned equal parts of fat and flour are sufficient for thickening.

Many like a jelly made by adding a glass of currant jelly, or less, to each cup of the brown gravy. This is especially good when cold mutton is to be warmed up in it.

Mint Sauce.—Chop a fourth of a cup of fresh mint, add a table-spoonful of powdered sugar and a half cup of hot vinegar, a half table-spoonful of salt. Let it stand in a warm place to draw out the flavor of the mint. Mint jelly may be made by using gelatin to stiffen it.

Every Day Talks For Every Day People...

A copy of a late San Francisco daily paper lies before me. I copy the following interesting item from it: "The Chinese Republic, together with pictures of the clothing prescribed for both sexes." It goes on to say that the conventional mode of street dress for the women of the Republic is given rather a wider latitude as to their clothes. Verily, time makes changes! Can't you imagine the change this edict will make in the very life of the Chinese people?

"Clothes don't make the man or the woman either." Let me add to that: "to know oneself as well-groomed is a far step in the right direction. With all the facilities we American women enjoy there is almost no vain expense for any of us to be not well-groomed. I don't care a rap what one's income is, they can and should be well-groomed. This at first sight may seem like a sweeping assertion, but really it is a fact. To live inside one's income, no matter how small that income may be, is good common sense in the majority of cases. To do this the most of us must practice strict economy. Did you ever see a business man throw away a one cent postage stamp again? You would probably think he was mentally incompetent if he did. Still, our American house-makers throw out and waste many times the value of a one cent stamp.

What we want in our homes is business principles applied to every phase of home life as far as we can possibly apply it. It requires just as much brains, and ability to successfully run the average American home as it does to run any of the business concerns in the world of finance. If we come to realize all this, and we change our methods from the haphazard way and applied a little system to our work we would soon notice the change for the better. Just try it and see.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.
A good way to clean ivory is with a soft toothbrush, white soap and tepid water. After scrubbing, wash with a well, brush clean, dip the brush in alcohol and polish until it gains its former sheen. If the water gives it a yellow tinge, dry the ivory in a heated oven, and then wash with a glass jar with a few drops of lime and muriatic acid, and get the whole in the sunshine. The lime and acid mixture must not touch the ivory. Wipe clean with a light colored glove by first dampening the cloth with oil, then dip it into flour and rub the gloves, first putting them on the hands.

The Table.
Baked Asparagus.—Cook the tender part of the asparagus stalks, cut into inch lengths, in slightly salted boiling water for twenty minutes. Then make a thick cream sauce. Put the asparagus in a buttered baking dish in layers with fine bread crumbs. Cover it with the cream sauce, put a layer of buttered crumbs on top and bake for 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven. This dish should be well seasoned with salt and pepper, of course, before it is put into the oven.

Milk Sherbet.—Put two pounds of sugar into a saucepan, add one cupful of hot water and stir over the fire until dissolved. When cold, add the strained juice of six large lemons. Pack the freezer, pour into it two quarts of milk and turn the crank slowly until the milk begins to freeze. Pour into the lemon sirup, close and freeze quickly. Repeat and set aside for several hours to ripen.

Broiled Minnan Haddock.—Get the imported haddock, if possible, cut in small squares, skin and paring. Wipe dry and broil over a clear fire until golden brown. Take up on a hot platter, and place on each a small bit of butter, into which a few drops of lemon juice and a sprinkling of parsley have been worked.

Asparagus Omelet.—Break four eggs into a bowl and beat until light and foamy. Add four table-spoonfuls of cream, a salt-spoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Have a clean, smooth omelet pan ready and melt table-spoonful of butter in it, letting it run all over the pan to grease the sides and pour in the egg mixture. As it cooks, prick with a fork in several places to allow the uncooked portion to run under. Lift with the fork until the whole is of creamy consistency. Have in readiness several table-spoonfuls of cooked asparagus, mixed with a little melted butter, a few drops of lemon juice, and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Spread quickly and evenly over the top of the omelet and shake out of the pan on a hot platter.

Cucumber Spirals.—Peel the cucumbers, toss into ice-water, then cut into rings and round with a fine sharp knife as if peeling an apple. The result should be a long slender spiral that makes a ring after ring. Serve with French dressing.

Tomato Sauce.—Take trout or yellow pike. Fish for a few hours. For sauce: Take half can tomatoes, one small onion, piece removed, small piece of butter and a little white pepper. Allow this to boil with a little water for 10 minutes. Add fish in small tender. When done place fish on platter; strain gravy, thicken with table-spoonful of flour, add chopped parsley and pour over the fish. Serve cold with or without capers.

Nut Chocolate Cake.—Two thirds cup butter, two cups sugar (white), two cups flour, yolks of four eggs, 3/4 teaspoon nutmeg, powder, one tea-spoon nutmeg and cloves, 3/4 square chocolate, one-half cup nut milk, together with following: One-half pound marshmallows melted, one-fourth cup hot water. When melted, pour into beaten whites of two eggs, beat till creamy, add vanilla and put on cake.

Who First Used Shorthand?
The Greeks are said to have had some system of shorthand as far back as the fourth century B. C. Old inscriptions have been found describing a sort of plan by which the vowels and consonants were to be expressed by certain lines curiously and variously placed. Wax tablets showing these curious markings have been discovered from time to time.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHY CAN'T WE SEE IT?
The shoe clerk daffily slipped my foot into a pair of hygienic shoes and asked me to stand up and try them. I did so and was delighted at the perfect ease and comfort which I felt. But they were such hideous things with their big rounded toes and their flat heels! "Isn't it too bad they can't be pretty like the other shoes?" I said regretfully as I surveyed them.

The shoe clerk smiled. "I think they are much prettier," he said. "Why shouldn't they have the outline of the human foot. Now isn't the line of the normal human foot as nature made it, far more beautiful than any shape that man has invented? What is there more beautiful about a pointed toe than a rounded toe?" "Curved is the line of beauty, you know."

"It's a perfectly good argument, isn't it?" "And yet it only convinces the mind; it doesn't seem to convince the eye and the heart—at least of the average woman."

But isn't it too bad that we can't see it that way? Isn't it too bad that we can't realize that a woman dressed in a skirt cut with sufficient fullness to permit the free use of her limbs, is a much more beautiful object than a woman hobbling awkwardly along with ridiculously cramped gait in a skirt which is a scant three-quarters of a yard around the hem?"

And yet such is the peculiar blinding power of fashion that the average woman cannot help admiring the abnormal and marinating if everybody is wearing it. She may know that by all the canons of art it is ugly, but nevertheless it looks attractive to her.

Once in a while art and fashion happen to agree, and we have some mode which has real beauty in itself in addition to the lustre which fashion gives it. But the shoe may know that by all the canons of art it is ugly, but nevertheless it looks attractive to her.

Don't you wish there were some way to so educate our eyes that we might see fashions as they are and love the truly beautiful instead of the fashionable?

Perhaps after hearing this trade you'd like to know what I did about the hygienic shoes. Well, then, being mentally convinced that they were the best thing, I bought them for walking, but being unconvinced in my heart, I also bought a smart pair of pumps to dress up in.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. LILLIAN THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married lady of twenty-five and like to do housework fine. (1) Please give me a good recipe for making chocolate filling. (2) How can I keep a neighborhood lady from coming to my house so much and keep her from getting mad? She has had children and is laying a good deal of blame for my little boy of four years old. (3) What should I do with my little boy—the A B C blocks or a book with the alphabet in it? (4) Do you think he is old enough to begin learning his letters at four years? (5) What kind of belt is stylish with a black skirt and white waist? (6) Do you think a little boy of four years old looks good with his hair bobbed? (7) Tell me, please, how a white emerald clean light colored gloves should be made? (8) Should the skirt have a hem on the look good? The waist is to be of the same goods as the skirt.

Stop That Cough In A Minute

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most parents cough-cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by perspiration from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. F. H. Hargraves, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, May 16, 1873. It is gratifying to us to be able to announce a two nights' engagement in this city of Lawrence Barrett, the eminent tragedian, and his meritorious company. They will appear at the Opera House on Thursday and Friday of next week, opening with Hamlet. The Quincy Herald of the 8th inst. gives Barrett and his company a complimentary notice. Just this side of Watertown, yesterday afternoon, while a freight train was under strong headway, a brakeman named William Perlin, of Oshkosh, fell between two cars, on the coupling links and bumpers and was thrown to the ground outside the rails, without sustaining any injury other than a bruised arm.

Mrs. Van Cott had a crowded house again last night. The meetings will be held in the Congregational church instead of the First A. E. church, during the balance of her labors in this city. One of Thomas Tennant's wagons loaded with street scrapings, backed down the steep embankment into the river in the rear of Griffith's shop, last night, drawing a span of horses into the river. They were unbridled and led out of the water. Since Smallwood opened his temperance bowling alley it has come to light that some of the church members have demonstrated that they can knock down the ten pins as well as the sinners. Ten pins is a game that requires practice.

LEGAL NOTICES

MAKES SUGGESTIONS WISCONSIN FARMERS

Special Washington Agricultural Expert Discusses Farming Conditions in Badger State.

Dr. John Lee Coulter, expert special agent in charge of agriculture at Washington, D. C., in a bulletin just issued by the Wisconsin State Board of Agriculture, discusses farming conditions in Wisconsin and possible means of improving them.

Dr. Coulter's recommendations are as follows:

First. Establish a system whereby new farms may be created, and more land may be brought into farms. Land for sale or available for settlement should be listed and described by the state so that prospective farmers might become acquainted with all of the possibilities.

Second. Improve, clear up, and insure land titles, and fix boundaries so that lenders and borrowers, buyers and sellers may save time and money, and the worry and risk may be eliminated. The Torrens System of land title registration, with such changes as may be necessary to serve local needs, now bears the stamp of approval of the most progressive countries of the known civilized world.

Third. Authorize the formation of land mortgage associations for farmers and outline scope of activities.

Fourth. Amend state and national laws in such a way as to make possible for state and national banks and trust companies to handle the class of securities which farmers are best able to furnish. This would make it easier for young and ambitious farmers to purchase farms and advance from tenancy to land ownership; it would make it easier to improve land now in farms but unimproved; it would make it possible to better equip and develop the farms in every way.

Fifth. Establish a system by which farmers may become owners of land by a series of payments after the amortization scheme so well known. State funds of various kinds (such as educational, insurance, etc.) might be used for this purpose.

Sixth. Improve the leasing system so that tenants may become more permanent in their communities and may accumulate enough to make first payment and eventually become owners. Improved systems of agriculture would result, yields would increase, and the resources would be preserved, and both owners and tenants, as well as society, would be more justly treated. Long leases with compensation to tenants for improvements and betterments are necessary.

Seventh. Reform the courses and methods of teaching arithmetic in country schools and show farm boys and girls the possibilities of farm accounts and the first principles of banking.

Eighth. Perfect the system of rural commercial credit by authorizing the formation of credit unions and prescribing their peculiar field in this country.

Ninth. Extend insurance in agriculture as rapidly as possible in order that all may bear the burden of unforeseen happenings more nearly equally.

Tenth. Eliminate as rapidly as possible the present store credit system by the establishment of the cooperative store, by a reorganization of farm privileges, and the establishment of a more regular farm income, and by use of the credit unions.

Athletic Vegetable.

What is known as the "Jumping Bean" is a curious Mexican seed which was sent over to England in the early fifties. Each bean contains the larva of a worm similar to our apple worm. It spins a soft case within the seed, and moves about without harm. This movement causes the bean to bump about upon any surface upon which it may be placed.

Joseph Meets His Brethren. Gen. xlii.

Golden Text—Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Gal. vi. 7.

(1.) Verses 1-6—How many of our troubles are there that we cannot end or mitigate by doing something?

(2.) Which is the worse calamity, to be paralyzed with fear by a great trouble, so that we only sit down and do nothing, or the trouble itself? Why?

(3.) Suppose Joseph's brethren had not sold him a slave into Egypt, how would God have protected that country against this great famine?

(4.) Was it better or worse for the world or the cause of God? Of the men themselves, that Jacob's sons committed the crime of selling their brother? Why?

(5.) If Joseph had not been reigning in Egypt but had remained in his own country, what would he probably have been doing there?

(6.) Verses 7-14—Why would you say or not that Joseph treated his brethren when he met them just as God wanted him?

(7.) Would you say or not, and why, that it is ever right to dissemble or act a lie or to say what you do not mean?

(8.) Why did Joseph act and speak roughly to his brethren?

(9.) What good results did Joseph's method of treating his brethren produce?

(10.) How were Joseph's dreams fulfilled?

(11.) Verses 15-20—Is Joseph's expression, "By the life of Pharaoh!" an oath or, at any rate, is it such language that a Christian should imitate?

(12.) If Jesus had been in the place of Joseph do you think he would have compelled these men to bring their youngest brother Benjamin? Why? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(13.) Why does God so frequently "prove" or test his best beloved children with troubles before he gives them some signal blessing?

(14.) Verses 21-24—How would this event have the tendency to remind them of their cruelty in selling their brother Joseph into Egypt?

(15.) When sorrow for our sins comes only as a result of the dire trouble brought on us by our sins, may it or not be true repentance? Why?

(16.) What is the connection between conscience and memory as illustrated by this story?

(17.) What was Reuben's pleasant memory in connection with the selling of Joseph?

(18.) When is it not right to follow the promptings of a tender heart?

(19.) Verses 25-28—Would the fact that they found the money they paid for the corn in the mouth of each sack have troubled them so much but for their guilty consciences? Why?

(20.) Why is it that the average sinner thinks of God when he is in great trouble?

(21.) Verses 29-33—How did their report of their experiences in Egypt affect their father, Jacob, and what do you think of his decision not to let Benjamin go?

Mrs. Post Wheeler (Hallie Erminie Rivers).

At the recent fancy dress ball in the British embassy at Rome, Mrs. Post Wheeler, wife of the secretary of the American embassy, was one of the most artistic figures. The ball was attended by many of the most beautiful women of Europe, but the American woman commanded much attention. She appeared in a costume representing "Springtime," as portrayed by Botticelli.

MANY GROWERS SOW
NEW TOBACCO BEDS

Early Dry Weather and Several Frosts Result in Damage to Young Plants.

Tobacco growers throughout the county complain of damage to their seed beds as the result first of the dry weather which followed the sowing and then of the frosts which nipped the young plants in uncovered beds. A large percentage of the farmers found it necessary to sow new beds which was done the latter part of last week and the first of the present week.

This will probably delay the transplanting season a week or more and will probably mean that plants will be at a premium. Growers with well protected beds which have survived the frosts and other setbacks will have a decided advantage in the matter of getting the crop started.

With continued warm weather and frequent rains, however, the plants will grow with surprising rapidity so that it is quite possible that transplanting may be but very slightly later than usual.

There is little doing in last year's seed. The Edgerton Reporter says: Three or four warehouses have still considerable packing to be done in this market before completing the season's handling, otherwise there is nothing about the local markets worthy of mentioning. Sales of cured leaf are confined to small order business.

Wherever the bulk of cases of goods have been broken, it is found that the tobacco is sweating generally satisfactory, though an occasional bit of black rot is encountered in the early rackings, but not enough to cause much alarm.

The shipments out of storage reach 200 cases from this market to all points since last report.

Heart to Heart
Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

IN HIS NAME.

Is it possible to live the Christ life in everyday affairs?

Is it possible to follow the spirit of Christ's teachings in business and politics, in the home and in the club?

If not, is the fault with his teachings or with us?

Are they impractical, or are we yet too crude, ignorant and savage to apply them?

Perhaps the hardest of his commands for men to obey is that concerning nonresistance. Yet have we not progressed far enough toward its realization to conceive that in some happier and more civilized age to come it will be followed literally?

His name is stamped all over our civilization. Why, then, do we not conform our lives to his pattern? Why do we not have the peace he prophesied? Why do we not practice the healing he practiced, and commanded us to practice?

We have made great progress toward the realization of his ideals and are still making progress. Yet we have had nineteen hundred years in which to do it. Why is our advance so slow?

"Ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

What have we to say to that?

What has Wall Street to say to it?

What has big business to say?

"Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Do we love our neighbors as ourselves? Do we realize that all men with whom we come in contact are at that moment our neighbors?

"Greater things than these shall ye do."

Are we doing greater things? Are we even remotely approximating toward doing things as great?

In a material way perhaps we are, but he did not talk about material things, but rather about moral and spiritual things.

We go forward in his name, but if we fail to do his commandments are we not guilty of lip service?

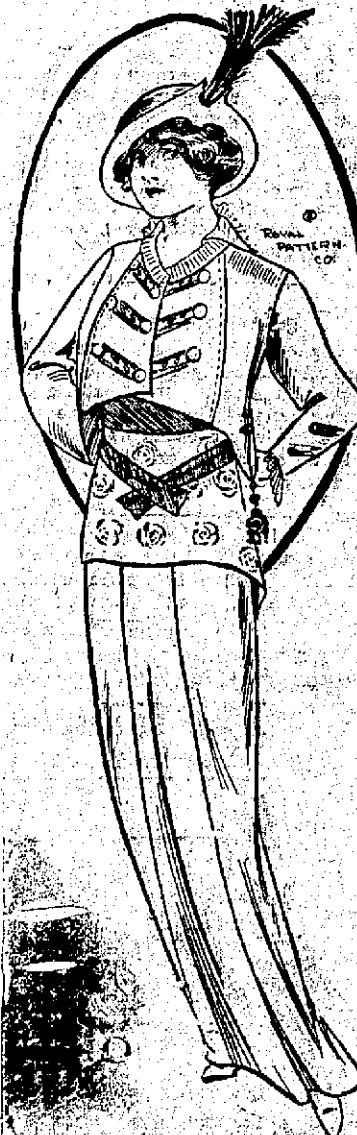

Must religion forever be a thing of form and not of fact, of seeming and not of substance?

This is not an arraignment of anybody. It is an attempt at a little heart searching. The implied criticism is as much of myself as of any one else.

Is Christendom true to him whose name it wears? If not, is it not time for us seriously to ask ourselves why?

And—
Is it not true that we individually and in the mass sought to conform more nearly to his standards.

No More Constipation

It's Me for Olive Tablets.

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar coated tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normal. They never force them to unnatural action.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are so easy to take that children do not regard them as "medicine" at all. If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Olive Tablets at bedtime. They're perfectly harmless.

Thousands take one every night just to keep right. Try them. "Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own." 10c and 25c per box.

THE DAUGHTER OF DAVID KERR

HARRY KING TOOTLE

Dinner over, Gilbert and Kendall withdrew to the library for a final conference over the stockyards situation. Again they tried to telephone David Kerr, only to receive the information that he was not at home.

"You really think the Belmont News having been bought by this outsider," queried Kendall, "puts a different aspect on the present situation?"

"Judge for yourself," answered the Belmont attorney. "I had Mr. Wright to dinner tonight so that you could meet him without arousing his suspicions. I wanted to help you that much."

What Kendall really thought he evidenced by his indirect reply.

"I don't blame Dave Kerr for being angry because Wright slipped in and bought the paper."

For a minute or more the two men smoked in silence. Kendall was wondering what he could say to his Chicago principals which would make them understand that Belmont was not now the Belmont of the old days; that although to all appearances it was the same the practiced eye could detect the vague unrest which pervaded it.

Judge Gilbert had been too long in the harness to wince at a corporation request for the vacation of a principal thoroughfare and a public park, but he was tired of the long fight for grasping masters whose one demand was always for more, more, more. And yet he had no sympathy with such men as Joe Wright. He had made up his mind, however, that he would not aid the company in this new franchise grab. He was partly led to this conclusion, all unconscious, because he knew David Kerr was not betraying any interest in it.

"The river eats up our tracks on the west," protested Kendall. "The stockyards'll never be safe while we depend on the one track." Then he added with emphasis, "We must come down Maple avenue on the east and use Benton Park for switching yards."

"It can't be done." "It can be done. Dave Kerr can do anything he pleases. He's the absolute boss of Belmont."

This was said with such a tone of finality that Judge Gilbert saw no need of replying. He knew that Kerr was the absolute boss of Belmont.

There flashed through the minds of both men the thought that the Belmont News might have something to say. It couldn't prevent a franchise being passed, of course, but publicity at times was unpleasant. This was something Kerr did not court, Gilbert knew. He was the easy boss, letting every one have a share of the spoils, and thus all were satisfied. Few indeed had been the times when the town had attempted to revolt.

"You'd have the whole town up in arms," remonstrated Gilbert.

"They've been up in arms before. Once they brought ropes to hang the council, but Kerr put through the water works deal. You're the attorney for the street railway company; you know what he did there."

"Yes, yes I know," Gilbert admitted hastily. Then with a sigh of relief, "That's all past."

He ran his hand through his hair, gray long before the frost of age could come to silver it, and was thankful that such episodes were things of the past. He was weary of it all. Kendall's next remark, delivered with the chill incisiveness of a lawyer cross-examining a belligerent witness, brought him once more to the defense of the man who had made his success possible.

"Is Dave Kerr keeping out of the deal only through fear of young Wright and the Belmont News?"

"He isn't afraid of anything. Mr. Kerr merely says that it doesn't interest him at the present time. As for me, I'm out of it."

"You're still Kerr's right-hand adviser."

"Pardon me, his legal adviser."

Kendall did not pause to acknowledge the distinction, but went on, this time straight to the heart of the matter.

"I made what the stockyards people consider a good offer. If that isn't enough, what's his price?"

This point-blank question irritated Gilbert. He much preferred to call a spade an agricultural implement even when talking with those who stood close to him in his manipulations for the various corporations he represented. He therefore ignored the question, preferring to tell why the matter could not be taken up at present.

"The election's coming on in a couple of months and your franchise would be made an issue. We can't afford it with the News in a position to boost the opposition party."

"I've got to get it through as soon as possible. There's nothing raw in this franchise, is there?"

"That's the Chicago point of view," answered Kendall. "Stripped of legal verbiage, what you want is to lay railroad tracks, on which will run cattle trains, down a pretty residence street and use a park for terminals, all without giving property owners or the city adequate compensation for ruining or confiscating their property. I call that pretty raw."

"Well, it's our best and certainly our cheapest way if Kerr will put through a franchise for us," Kendall maintained stubbornly. "I'll come back next week, and take the matter up again. In the meantime you can talk it over thoroughly with Kerr. He may have something to say by that time."

"It hardly seems likely. He seldom changes his mind."

"He may this time. I've got to get away now and go by the hotel before I go to the train. Let's go back to the drawing-room, where I can have a few more words with Wright. We may be able to win him over."

"That's what I'm going to try to do," replied Judge Gilbert, as they rose to rejoin Mrs. Gilbert and her guests.

The attorneys entered the drawing-room to find a discussion regarding newspapers just drawing to a close with victory still uncertain on which standard to perch.

"You just missed hearing Dr. Hayes pay his respects to newspapers," Judge Gilbert said to Joe Wright with a smile. The layman's opinions always interested and usually amused a journalist.

"What's the matter? Have you told him you won't publish the box scores of the ball games this year?"

"I'll do that for him, and gladly." "Then, there's no occasion to kick. That's the only thing that can trouble a fat man."

"This time I was speaking generally," explained Hayes. "I don't like some of the ways reporters have."

"That's only a small part of the business," laughed Wright. "If you complain only about that I shall have you for a staunch adherent."

Mrs. Hayes saw that Kendall was at a loss to understand the drift of the conversation, and accordingly said, "Dr. Hayes is coroner, Mr. Kendall, and the Banner man calls us up at most unearthly hours."

The Belmont Banner was the morning paper, and its editor, Deacon Jerry Withrow, was always at the beck and call of the boss. Kerr let him think that he had something to do with directing the affairs of the city. This was a harmless delusion, since his pliant attitude always made him consider a suggestion let fall by the boss as a scheme which he himself had hatched.

"I think it is dreadful for nice men to be mixed up in politics," said Mrs. Gilbert.

Perhaps it was no more dreadful than the lack of knowledge of politics displayed by the nice women of Belmont. This would have been difficult to impress upon Mrs. Gilbert. She knew well enough that her husband was consulted by that odious David Kerr, but that was in a legal way and Kerr paid well for the advice he received. Even the tone in which she spoke showed how thankful she was her husband was not in politics. Mrs. Hayes was quick to say what she thought along the same line by adding:

"And Dr. Hayes doesn't have to at all, you know. He says he does it for the good of the party."

This would have been all very interesting to Kendall if he had had the entire evening to spend in such pleasant company. Time was pressing, however, and in the few minutes still at his disposal he wished to sound Wright at greater length about the Belmont News.

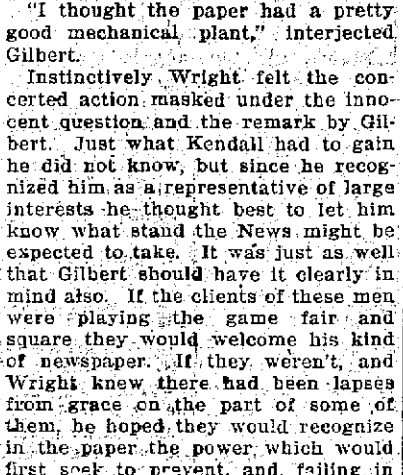

Kendall looked closely at the young man whom he had already set down as an opponent. Physically Wright seemed no shirker of a combat. His shoulders were broad and his body well developed. Led to believe from his knowledge of the reformer type that he would find Joe Wright a long-haired theorist and Utopian dreamer, the lawyer found instead a self-possessed, well-balanced young man. The newspaper owner's manner, even in repose, was judicial. To Kendall's thinking he had the air of a man who would not be swayed by prejudice or liking. It was his part, however, as a special pleader, to make Wright think himself too much an idealist—if he could—in opposing the just claims of the stockyard company.

"I suppose you found the News somewhat run down when you took hold of it," Kendall remarked casually. "Yes, the name was about all I bought."

"I thought the paper had a pretty good mechanical plant," interjected Gilbert.

Instinctively Wright felt the concerted action masked under the innocent question and the remark by Gilbert. Just what Kendall had to gain he did not know, but since he recognized him as a representative of large interests he thought best to let him know what stand the News might be expected to take. It was just as well that Gilbert should have it clearly in mind also. If the clients of these men were playing the game fair and square they would welcome his kind of newspaper. If they weren't, and Wright knew there had been lapses from grace on the part of some of them, he hoped they would recognize in the paper the power which would first seek to prevent, and, failing in

As Judge Gilbert was about to enter his front door, having accompanied Mr. Kendall as far as the gate, he saw a carriage stop in front of the house. The man who got out and came up the walk he recognized instantly. None the less he did not walk like the David Kerr of yesterday; he seemed in every motion as he came into the light cast by the porch lamp to be the David Kerr of ten years hence. Realizing that only something unusual could bring the master of Locust Lawn out at night, and to his house, too, the lawyer went down the porch steps to meet his visitor.

"Good evening, Mr. Kerr," was Gilbert's greeting. "This is an unexpected pleasure."

"Evening, Amos. Can I see you alone? I don't want to be interrupted." "We can go into the library. No one will disturb us there."

To this Kerr made no reply. He toiled heavily up the steps and into the house, Gilbert's surprise increased on finding, when his visitor removed his overcoat, that he had on evening clothes. It was more an intuitive feeling than observation which made Gilbert understand how uncomfortable the boss found his unaccustomed raiment.

"He May This Time." This, then try to correct. Judge Gilbert's allusion to the good mechanical plant he seized upon for a text.

"That's true, the News has a good mechanical plant." He paused to let that sink in before he continued.

"Somehow or other when I think of a newspaper I never think of that side of it. I have in mind only the feeling of confidence with which a newspaper inspires its readers."

"What do you think the ideal newspaper is like?" asked Judge Gilbert. He wanted to know to what kind of star this young man had hitched his wagon.

"The ideal newspaper is one which has no ax to grind, and no personal animus in the discussion of private affairs or public questions, but only a constant regard for the truth and the lasting welfare of the state."

Kendall went to what he considered the heart of the matter.

"Aren't you leaving out of consideration, Mr. Wright, that everything—this government, even—is but a compromise?"

"No, I recognize that, and I believe in compromise. Without it we would still be cave dwellers. It is exactly because of this everpresent compromise that an honest newspaper is so valuable. It must see to it that this compromise is open and above board. It mustn't be the give-and-take trade of low politicians in the back room of a saloon, or the far more dangerous trades of men higher up and powerful interests; not that kind of compromise, which after all is a sale of some thing one does not legally own to one who cannot or will not secure it honestly. I tell you that the majority must rule fairly and with a proper deference for the rights of the minority; that's where a newspaper can be of service."

Having decided to deliver a broadside, Wright had gone about it with great enthusiasm. The sight of Mrs. Hayes gazing wonderingly at him, for she did not understand what he meant, caused the editor to break off with a laugh. He recognized that Judge Gilbert's drawing-room was not the proper place for a lengthy exposition of his views.

"I'm afraid I'm preaching," he apologized, "and there's nothing I hate more than that."

"Not at all," protested Kendall. "Your views interest me greatly, Mr. Wright. When I come again I am going to see how far along you are on the road to the ideal."

With this Kendall announced that he must be going, and made his adieux. To have a few last words about Wright, Judge Gilbert accompanied the visiting attorney even to the front gate. His very last assertion was that he himself would have nothing to do with the proposed franchise grab and that he was morally certain David Kerr was of the same frame of mind.

DINNER STORIES

Oliver Herford, the humorist and author of the classic, "The Purple Cow," went out walking with a poetess the other day. The poetess supplemented most of her remarks with scouling sighs and seemed considerably impressed with the transcendent beauty and the ethereal sublimity of one thing and another. Turning to Mr.

Herford finally she queried: "Have you no greater ambition, Mr. Herford, than to move a vulgar rattle to law?"

Mr. Herford allowed that he had. Yes, indeed, he had a regular little old whole of an ambition. The poetess eagerly demanded to know what it was.

"It is my ambition some day," said Herford, to throw an egg into an electric fan."

The Daily Novelette THE ULTIMATE LOVE "Thirteen maidens ranged against the wall. Little ones and brittle ones, but maidens all."

"Not merely out of curiosity, but just because I want to know," she whispered softly, "how much do you love me?"

"I love you more than a raving fan loves his home town on a winning day," he replied fervently, and kissed her.

"I don't think much of that," she pouted.

"But darling," he protested after a moment's thought, "I love you more than a tinker trots with a pious mamma loves the last day of Lent!" And he kissed her.

She shook her blonde head and wrinkled her blonde nose.

"I guess you can't love me much," she said coldly.

"He thought desperately. "Dearest," he said, as he kissed her, "I love you as much as a matinee girl loves her powder on a day in July!"

"Aloysius!" she cried in rapture, and kissed him back.

Beauty of Spider's Web.

There are few more beautiful objects than a spider's web covered with dew. In symmetry, in perfection of geometrical arrangement and in the prismatic reflection of color it is a gorgeous object. And consider the wonderful devices that our garden spider has for attending to its toilet. Was ever comb in woman's boudoir more perfect or more attractive than these combs that the spider has at the end of the claws to aid in manipulating the cobweb threads, in clinging to a rough object, and as aids in walking over the web?

"Husband, you have never given me any money since we have been married. Now, I positively must have $50."

"Aw, there's a dollar. What are you going to do with it?" "I think I'd better frame it as a souvenir. In that case, hand it back, and I'll give you a check instead."

We are now prepared to take care of your wants better than we ever have been before.
